Tasting Notes: Block 14C is one of the vineyard blocks that you see driving to the property, on the slopes where an old (and empty) water tower stands, 6 different blocks run up and down. It is almost as if the water has dried up but it seeps its history down to these blocks. 14C is planted with clone 115 (which originates from Dijon, France), but the secrets that these vines hold seem to point towards tannin and floral integration.

Cherry, plum, and chocolate covers rose petals in the nose. It starts out bright with acidity and carries that to the end, while carrying with it, tannic chewiness and a clean refined body.
